Alexandria, Va.

One of the editors of the Hagerstown, Md. Mail, who was one of the party which lately made an excursion through some of the Southern States, thus writes about Alexandria:

"Forward to the street cars and hands on our pocket books, (for remember we are now in Washington,) and then for the Alexandria Boat! Here we are safe at the boat, the "indefatigable" at our elbow, and an introduction to Capt. Collymare, who we understood from the "indefatigable," was a "devilish good fellow." This we found out afterwards to be the case, "as true as preaching." A good fellow, truly, was Capt. Collymare, of the Aquia Creek, line and that too, without inserting anything like devilish. Ah, Sam, don't use such vile words when you speak hereafter of good fel-

Capt. Collymare dropped our party at the ancient-looking city of Alexandria, and shortly that he has returned home again, after an abthereafter twenty-three "carpet-baggers" were sence of two weeks up North. We can say with Green, known as the Mansion House.—
Here a warm and good supper was soon served up, and was enjoyed by the entire party. After supper some of our party strolled around the supper some of our party strolled around made an addition to his store in the way of a made an addition to his store in the wa of Green & Wise, which is connected with the call upon him. hotel, and "talked land." Thus was passed the time until the party "turned in"—to fight the mosquitoes the rest of the night!

We were up early next morning, (indeed we have an indistinct recollection of remaining | chased and had made to order the largest and awake all night) for sleep we could not, owing to the cries of "more blood," "Let us have Peace," "Thad Stevens!" "I-m-p-e-a-c h-Peace," "Thad Stevens!" "I-m-p-e-a-c h-m-e-n-t," and kindred noises made by the pests that filled our room. Whirr!-w-hi-z!s-l-a-p!-b a-n-g! and murder assumed a terrible shape. Singular to relate none of our party were put under bail to keep the peace, and all matters were satisfactorily adjusted with Mr. Green, by simply following in the fashion of the mosquitoes-"settling bills!"

But a truce to such varmints, and a word for Green & Wise. This firm has a considerable amount of land for sale in the State of Virginia, much of it along the principal railroud routes leading to Washington. Land in this section is becoming more valuable daily. Virginia is rapidly settling up, and land is advancing, especially in such close proximity to the best of markets. We were pleased to meet while here, Wm. H. Beck, esq., (formerly of Winchester,) who, too, is selling land, and bids fair to do a large business. Mr. Beck made a number of sales while in business at Winchester, and brought considerable capital into the valley. He is a clever gentleman and honorable and fair in his dealings. We wish both these land agencies the success they merit.

As we intimated, the city of Alexandria wears an ancient appearance. At one time it was a flourishing city and commanded a large trade. For a long time it languished, trade was diverted to other cities through internal changes, and Alexandria was not the busy ac-tive city she had formerly been. Change, how-ever, is once more the order of the day. The Orange and Alexandria and Manassas Gap R. Roads penetrate the most fruitful portions of the "Mother of States," and are pouring her golden riches into this city. The completion of the Alexandria Loudoun and Hampshire R. Road to the coal fields of Hampshire will be another dawning of the "good time coming." Prospectively, therefore, this city offers superior inducements to commercial and business enterprise. Property is still low in the city, but it is advancing, and will continue to advance the more Virginia is opened up with internal Improvements, the fruits of which must pour into her lap.

As a number of our party had a desire to see "Washington in daylight," (it being their first visit,) it was resolved to lay over during Friday and take the boat for Aquia Ureck in the evening. Whilst our travelling companions were therefore "seeing the sights" in the "city of magnificent distances" and national corruption, visiting among other places the Patent office Smithsonian Institute, and other noted and interesting places, we remained in Alexandria also paid a pleasant visit to Col. John S. Barbour, President of the Orange, Alexandria and Manassas Railroad Company.

There are three newspapers printed in Alexandria, the Gazette, Commercial and Journal, all being published daily. The Gazette is stilled edited and owned by that veteran and pioner of the "art preservative," Edgar Snowden, esq., and is one of the "institutions" of the city. During the war, fate decreed its suspension temporarily, but it made its appearance at the first practicable opportunity, and has met with the liveliest success. Its history is only another repetition of "truth crushed to earth," &c. The Commercial and Journal, we believe, are both new papers, but we found them both prospering and conducted by exceedingly clever gentlemen. [The Southern Churchman, a religious journal of large circulation, is also printed here.]

Our visit to Col. Barbour, who we found in his office in the Railroad building, was both pleasant and profitable. Col. B. gave us much valuable information of the resources and condition of that particular portion of his State tha we desired to know something about, which information we imparted to those most interested, when it was resolved to return home via the Piedmont section of Virginia. This determination, we regretted exceedingly the party Were unable to carry into execution, owing to want of time and business engagements at home of a majority of its members. However, a return of the party with "reinforcements" is contemplated in the month of November, when this route will be selected as one that is desirable to pass over. During our conversation with Col. Barbour, we learned with much satisfaction that the completion of the Manassas Gap Railroad to Harrisonburg would occur during the month of November when a formal opening would take November when a formal opening would take place. The completion and opening of this load to the point named will be a great era in the history of Virginia-her magnificent valley of the Shenandoah will then be pretty fully penetrated by the "iron horse," affording ample developement for the conveying to market of her rich and inexhaustible wealth in minerals and agricultural products. To Col. B. much praise is due for the early completion of this important work, which adds so much material strength to the recuperative power of glorious old Virginia."

This magnificent Stove stends in the same relation to other stoves as the precious jewel from which it derives its name does to other jewels. Profiting by past experience, we have thrown into it all the commendable qualities of the most popular Stoves, and have added inventions of our own rendering it the best combination of philosophy and mechanics now in the market, and making it a perfect stove. By the arrangement the combustion of gasses is perfect, and greater efficiency is obtained to perform what we claim for it, with a great diminution in amount of fuel necessary. It is unequalled in every particular, in beauty, in workmanship, in durability, and as a home necessity is peerless. It is a self-feeder, and not likely to get out of order.
